

Title: Song Beyond Your Years
Lyrics: Val Kilmer

---

I got pillars for pillows
Boys staining the water red
Hogs feeding on the undying dead

Grant spent the night under a tree
Deployed on the banks of the Pittsburgh landing
Near Shiloh, don't you know?
The word means place of peace...

A smothered moan,
The deep base note of defeat
Out weary and depressed
Beyond the wall of my friends
The dead the young dyin'
Here are the northern lights.
Here are the pure bread ahead
Ahead ahead ahead ahead
A song beyond your years
O song beyond your years
A song beyond your years

I knock back some of the "o be joyful"
I stand tall and pray for you all
I'm drunk and strange and ephemeral
Eternal and grateful
Humble I mumble the prophecy of psalms
The topography of you
The lioness of true

The fluency of new
Yeah let's get new
That's what Delroy said

O yeah can we get new on the banks of the Potomac
On the backs of the u...
On the ranks of the rebels on the backs of the u

No more war no more no more war no more war

Can we get new?
Can we get new?
A song beyond your years
A song beyond your years
We need a song beyond years
To bind up all your fears

No more war no more war
The dead and the young dead
Young dead young dead young dead
Why can't we get new?
